F. R. Faucher is Recommended for Postmaster

Francis R. Faucher, the senior clerk in the Lemon Grove post office, has been recommended by Congressman McKinnon to the position of postmaster.

This announcement is pleasing to the patrons of the local office, for it shows that the postal department is recognizing merit among its employees in taking one from the ranks and advancing him to an executive position.

Mr. Faucher is 35 years old, and has been in the postal service since 1937, with the exception of a few years during the war when he worked in an airplane plant.

Born in Minnesota, he came to California in 1926, and was educated in the San Diego public schools and graduated from San Diego High. He resides with his wife and four children at 7480 San Miguel avenue in a home which he constructed himself.

Mr. Faucher entered the postal service in the San Diego office in 1937 as a clerk, until 1942 when ill health forced his retirement. Being war time, he felt he should not be idle so went to work at Consolidated Aircraft as an instructor in aircraft engines. He later transferred into aircraft inspection until the close of the war and then did carpenter work for a few months.

He re-entered the postal service in November 1947 as a clerk in the Lemon Grove office. He was the first civil service employee in the local office, aside from the postmistress.

Besides the postmaster, the local office employs three fulltime clerks: Mrs. Grace Jarvis, Leonard B. Meyer and Martin Kennedy, and has three carriers, Karl Sonne, Robert Curry and William Baxter. There are three temporary employees: Roy Kranz, Leo V. Cass and Margaret O'Donnell.

Grovers Win Third in Row

The Grovers took their third in a row when they defeated Spring Valley last week by a score of 16 to 11. Jack Hadley was the winning pitcher allowing eight hits. The losing pitcher, La Salle, gave up 11 hits. B. Valstad, Grover catcher, got four hits out of five times at bat.

On Sunday the Grovers will play Jamul at the grounds at Grove and Imperial. They extend an invitation to all to come and see the game.

Bible School Closing Program

The Vista La Mesa Christian Church will hold the closing program of the Vacation Bible School this (Thursday) evening at 7:45. Each department will give a sample of its work and daily activities. The exhibit of handwork is to be downstairs and for convenience will be opened at 7:00 so it may be seen before the program. The certificates will be awarded after the attendance is checked the last day of school. All parents of children attending are urged to be present.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Park E. McManigal of San Diego, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beverly Elise McManigal, to Richard Eugene Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Patterson, 8396 Golden avenue. They have chosen September 10 for the nuptial date.

Theosophical Study Group

The Theosophical Study group of Lemon Grove will hold its bi-weekly meeting on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the home of Ruth Schulz, 2850 Cypress street. The subject chosen for study and discussion is "Evolution in the Human Kingdom" from the book, "Studies in Occult Philosophy," by Dr. Gottfried de Purucker, a former-leader of the Theosophical Society. Inquirers are always welcome to attend these informal group meetings.

Junior Club Board Meeting

Mrs. David Hentigan, president of the Forward Club Juniors, conducted her first board meeting last night at her home, 1730 DuPont drive. Discussion was held on plans for the new year book, a membership drive and ways and means work. It was voted to give $15.00 to a Camp Fire campership. Plans for a booth at the Pow Wow are under way. After the business meeting, refreshments were served.

No Endorsement by Chamber

At the recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce, the matter of the forthcoming Pow Wow was up for consideration by the board and after due consideration, it was voted to withhold the Chamber's endorsement of the affair.

Give Service in Camp Fire Theme

"Give Service" is the theme of the Day-Camp program for the Blue Birds and Junior Camp Fire Girls today from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The program last Thursday was enjoyed by 95 girls. In carrying out the theme for the day, Mrs. Robert Wright, chairman, will give a short talk on service, and the girls will make picture scrap books for the Children's Convalescent Home.

The Camp Fire Girls will prepare a meat stew for lunch. Spatter prints of leaves from the trees in the park will be made for their own memory books.

The story hour will be record of the "Snow Goose," by Herbert Marshall, and afterwards there will be charades of nursery rhymes, folk dances and games.

Mrs. Robert Wright will be the Camp Fire counselor of the day. Mrs. Richmond Barber will be music chairman, in charge of the Blue Birds. Mrs. Homer Blalock is the business counselor. Assistants are Mesdames Avery Hawkin, R. L. Sheres, W. G. McClellan and A. H. Wallace of La Mesa; M. D. Tweed and Jack Stazz of Homelands.

Senior Camp Fire Girls assisting are Florence Porter, Frances and Helen Whiting and Charlotte Coshaw of Lemon Grove.

Community Center Annual Lemon Workers Holiday

All work on the Community Center building was suspended for the holiday weekend by Chris Ferguson, chairman, to allow a three day holiday for everyone. It is hoped that next Saturday will see a large crowd out to set the forms for the concrete and to get all the ground work done. As soon as this is accomplished, the floor will be poured. It was originally planned to have this floor in by the Fourth of July so that a dance and celebration could be held on it.

Perhaps if everyone will get behind the hammers, shovels, etc., it will be far enough along to hold Labor Day celebrations there.

Business Women Lunch at Balboa

The last meeting of the Business Woman's League was held in the Grove Theatre, after which they drove to Balboa Park for luncheon. The afternoon was spent visiting places of interest in the park.

The next meeting will be held on July 7 at 12:30 in Friendship Hall of the Congregational Church, Main and Church streets. There will be four Girl Scouts or Campfire Girls to care for small children. Mothers with small children are urged to attend. For reservations call Mrs. George Dickenson, H-3541.

Mrs. Insko and Miss Bobbitt of the Good Will Organization of San Diego told of the fine work being done, especially among the aged who would otherwise be unemployed, at the meeting of the Young Mrs. Club Tuesday night in Friendship Hall of Congregational Church. Mr. Insko also showed pictures of the Good Will Industries.

Hostesses were Mrs. C. F. Baxter, Mrs. Ruth Holmes and Mrs. Peterson.

To Hear Industrial Counselor

The Lions Club members will hear Fred W. Bierig, industrial counselor, tonight at their weekly luncheon meeting in the new Friendship Hall of Congregational Church. The members and ladies attended an inter-club meeting with Chula Vista Lions on Wednesday evening of last week, skipping their own meeting here for that week.

Local Folks Visit Quaint Russian Colony in Old Mexico

Visiting the Russian colony near Ensenada, Mexico on Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Snyder, of Snyder's Lemon Grove Radio Shop, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Snyder of La Mesa, had a most delightful day. They learned from Mary, the only English speaking person there, that 45 years ago 100 families from Russia bought 3,500 acres from the Mexican government and named it Colony Guadalupe. Here they secluded themselves.

These people felt within their hearts that they must leave Russia if they were to survive the wars prophesied. Of all the relatives and friends that were left in the old country, not one lived through the war.

In Colony Guadalupe, the Russians are farmers. Several were seen loading hay on wagons which have racks low on one side and high on the other side, as in old Russia. Four and eight-horse teams did the hauling. Water was being drawn in barrels on two-wheel carts. Cattle wearing bells and pokes roamed the dusty roads. Many of these people grow acres and acres of grapes for wine, which seemed to be the only liquid they drank.

Homes were made of adobe and a very few had been white washed. Traces of old outdoor ovens could be seen.

A little village marked the center of the tract. At present only 35 families live there. There was an exodus of young people during the war, leaving many homes un-

Rules for Queen Contest Told

Plans for the Pow Wow to be held in Lemon Grove on July 19, 20 and 21 are progressing, the majority of the local business people having signified their willingness to sponsor the festival by taking ads. in the programs.

Several civic organizations are building booths for the event and the merchants are generously donating prizes for the various contests that are to be held during the three days.

The Lions Club invaded the Chula Vista fair and swamped those Lions with tickets, inaugurating the Queen contest. The rules are as follows:

Age—16 to 22 years of age; single or married; must be resident of Lemon Grove Community.

Sponsors—Contestants must be sponsored by local merchants or organizations.

Registration—Contestants will register with Mrs. Robert Hill, 7370 Broadway, Mutual Liquid Gas Co., Tel. Homeland 6-8466 or Homeland 6-6387.

Forms will be available with list of rules. Contestants are to submit glossy photos, 8x10, for publicity purposes. Sponsor may display any size photo at place of business.

Judging—The contest for queen is to be judged by points earned with each 50¢ purchase from Lemon Grove merchants, good for one vote each; or five votes for each donation of 50 cents toward purchase of a War Bond.

Egg Truck Turns Over

Delane D. Anderson, of Lemon Grove got into the news yesterday when his truck, loaded with 64,800 eggs, overturned in Escondido and spilled the load on the new freeway. Anderson probably made the largest dish of scrambled eggs on record. It took two hours to clean the mess off the pavement.

Goat Association Meeting

The July meeting of the Southern California Milk Goat Association will be held Sunday at Felicia Park. Potluck lunch will be served at noon, sharp. Each one is to bring his own table service.

Review to Run Horse Column

Along with the policy established by the new publishers of the Review to furnish complete coverage of interesting news, one of the new features will be an Equestrian News column by Mrs. Marge Ellison. This ardent horsewoman needs no introduction to the equestrian set, as she has been very active in this field for the past five years, along with her other business activities.

While Marge is a licensed Real Estate Broker, specializing in ranches and rural properties, she has many diversified business connections—horse publications and clubs being at the top of the list. For convenience, and because she has every faith in the bright future of Lemon Grove, she has recently transferred her business office from San Diego to a new location at 7882 Broadway, Lemon Grove. As soon as phone service is available at the new address, the office will be open, not only for real estate transactions and her mailing service, but will be headquarters for the San Diego County Horsemen's Association, Inc., and as its official secretary, she will transact all business for the club at the Lemon Grove address. She has been secretary of the Aztec Riders since the club started four years ago. She has been editor of Wig Wags from the Wig Wam for the past two years, and having felt for a long time the need of a general equestrian magazine, covering events in the southern part of the State, she is the promoter and editor of a new publication, "Southland Equestrian Journal," which she hopes will click with the horse people of the county and receive their endorsement and cooperation.

Marge is a member of the California State Horsemen's Association and has their best wishes for the success of her new publication. In her 'spare time' she can be located at her Alvarado Ranch in Alvarado Canyon, across from the Aztec Riders' Ring.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, R. M. Long, the bride was charming in a gown of white satin, trimmed in lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids and gladioli.

Mrs. R. M. Long served her sister as matron of honor, wearing a gown of pink marquisette.

Roman Hiner served his brother as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hiner home at 7966 Nichols avenue.

Grove Bank is Well Received

During the first four and a half days of operation of the Lemon Grove Branch, First National Trust and Savings Bank, 287 accounts were opened by the people of Lemon Grove and contiguous territory.

Jack Koop, manager, and his force of regular employees were assisted during the first few days in receiving and opening of accounts by George Sears, Sheldon Belcher and H. M. Boyle of the main office of the banking firm.

The bank was exceptionally well received by the people of this vicinity and many complimentary remarks were made by the new depositors.

Everyone expressed their appreciation of having a local bank and of the convenience it afforded them in savings of trips to La Mesa, San Diego and other nearby communities to do their banking.

Local businessmen, too, are more than well pleased with the opening of a local bank. People trade where they bank, and consequently will do more trading in Lemon Grove now that banking facilities are available here.

The addition of a bank to the community is a big step forward. Lemon Grove has taken great strides during the past 12 or 14 months, but local enthusiasts believe that "we ain't seen nothin' yet."

This community is bound to grow in a big way.

Visits Ministerial Council at Camp

Pastor Charles Betz of the Lemon Grove Seventh Day Adventist Church has just returned from a four-day ministerial council at Idylwild Camp in the San Jacinto Mountains. This council preceded the Junior Camp held from July 10 to 20 for boys from nine to 14 years of age. The camp for girls will be from July 24 to August 3.

The Idylwild Camp is just one of the 46 North American Seventh Day Adventist camps. Pastor Betz stated that the camps will be open to children of all faiths. The wholesome outdoor life offered in these camps is often the contributing factor in causing faltering young people to become good citizens and Christians.

Daily Bible study, lessons in citizenship, crafts and nature study and supervised recreation are among the camp's activities. The exact number of children attending from this area is not known.

Local Man Weds Cleveland Girl

The Little Chapel of the Roses in Chula Vista was the setting for the wedding ceremony at 12:30 o'clock Sunday of Miss Rose Marie Sash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sash of Cleveland, Ohio, and Forrest Richard Hiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest R. Hiner of Lemon Grove.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, R. M. Long, the bride was charming in a gown of white satin, trimmed in lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids and gladioli.

Mrs. R. M. Long served her sister as matron of honor, wearing a gown of pink marquisette.

Roman Hiner served his brother as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hiner home at 7966 Nichols avenue.

County Federation Meeting

There will be a meeting of the San Diego County Federation of Women's Clubs on Tuesday, July 12, at 10:00 a.m. in the club house of the Mission Beach Woman's Club, 840 Santa Clara place, Mission Beach. Our Policy

In outlining the editorial policy of the Lemon Grove Review under the new ownership the publishers will say that the Review will in no wise be radical in its policies and in every problem or project that comes up concerning local affairs we will weigh each matter in the light of whether it is a good thing for the future of Lemon Grove. The community must progress and move forward, but not at the expense of the overburdened tax payers and property owners. Projects should benefit a community in such a way that any increase in taxes will be reflected in increased property values, otherwise they are luxuries and should be treated as such. As to candidates for office, our only local officials being members of the Grossmont High School board of trustees, the Lemon Grove Elementary School trustees, the Justice of the Peace and the San Diego County Supervisor from this district, the Review will weigh the qualifications of each one carefully and support the candidates whom it believes will best serve the local interests. Only in extreme cases, however, will we take sides in the elementary school election. In state and national politics, the publishers of the Review have been registered Republicans, but that at times has not prevented us from supporting a Democrat when we thought he was the best man for the job. We believe in the Constitution of the United States of America. We believe in equal rights for all. Those who disagree with us have just as much right to express their opinion as we have to express ours, and we are not willing to see that right denied.

Teamwork Needed

This may come as a surprise to many of us, but Labor is showing signs of concern for the welfare of Management. At least one segment of union labor seems to be interested in how the boss is making out.

The AFL, in its publication, "Labor's Monthly Survey," proposes union co-operation with management on production committees "to save expenses, cut costs and improve production." Going a step further, the AFL's new slant stresses the fact that the welfare and security of the workers depend on the financial condition of the employer. And although taking a generally bright view of our national economy, the AFL sounded a warning to Government, management and unions to avoid any action that might upset the apple cart and lead to inflation.

It is a healthy sign when an important element of labor makes a public statement to the effect that wage boosts should now be based on increased productivity to prevent a rise in costs—and should be considered. That kind of thinking should lead to better understanding by the workers of the need for increased production, and sufficient profit margin for the employer to meet his competition.

In short, it should lead to the only sensible goal in labor-management relations—teamwork.

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

During the waning hours of the just concluded 49er session of the California Legislature, the McLain pension clique ruthlessly arose during the construction of mammoth Shasta Dam. Here commercial fishing was involved. Formerly nearly half of all the salmon caught in California waters were spawned in the cold mountain streams above the dam site.

At issue in the battle between schools and pension promoters was a $250 million bond issue for urgently needed school buildings. Representatives of the teaching profession pointed out to the Legislature that if an election wasn't called this fall to pass on the measure, California school children soon wouldn't have room to park their books, much less themselves.

On the other hand, the McLain pension organization battled with all its command against a 1949 election.

Obviously, the promoters of the notorious Proposition 4, which was enacted by a scant margin of 37,000 votes last November, were afraid to permit the people to vote on repeal of the pension scheme. Members of McLain's committee were urged to send telegrams to the legislators and telegram was sent each solon with the thinly veiled information of the number of voters in his district who helped pass number four. (If the teachers had cared to send a list of the number of voters in each district favoring their last ballot measure, the figures would have looked shabby by comparison.)

A measure to repeal Proposition 4, the McLain scheme, already has qualified for the ballot which will maintain pension payments for the aged at $75 monthly and for the blind at $65 monthly. However it will return pension administration to normal legislative and gubernatorial channels and eliminate the costly "fine print" provisions of number four which McLain's group sponsored.

Interestingly, just after the schools had won an important round against the pension promoters, a spokesman for McLain is quoted as saying "The old age pensioners are not and do not want to be placed in the position of opposing needed expenditures for education. No group is more anxious to give the children of California adequate educational facilities."

More to the point, the McLain clique failed to make such a statement or to show particular concern for California's school children except when defeat seemed likely.

Significantly, when the dust of battle had settled, the experts were agreed that the tactics of the McLain clique would cost it dearly in the future. The day of reckoning for the McLain pension scheme is not far distant, it is being said. Most observers are agreed that the repeal initiative will be successful. California is able and willing to take care of its aged and blind—but putting up with unsound pension administration is another matter.

JAMES DORIAS

With vacation season in full swing, Californians can be found these summer days in every State in the Union, and probably, in almost every country on the globe. But California itself, with its infinite variety of attractions, is the number one vacation spot for natives as well as a favorite mecca for out-of-State tourists.

For at least one out of every 10 Californians, the chief outdoor attractions are the fish that abound in local lakes and streams. Before the season is over, State officials estimate, more than a million fishing licenses will be sold.

Few Isaacs Waltons probably give it little thought, but California's reputation as a fisherman's paradise would have been badly tarnished long ago if it weren't for the co-operation of public agencies and private industry.

Some fish, notably steelhead trout and salmon, are creatures of habit, with an infallible homing instinct. At spawning time, they return to the beds where they were born. But life in California must be very confusing to a fish, for man keeps shifting the scenery around.

Every time a utility company dams a river or an irrigation district diverts water from a stream, the habits of the fish who swim the stream must be taken into consideration. Under the supervision of the California Division of Fish and Game, fish ladders must be built and screens installed, to assure their uninterrupted passage. And care must be taken to keep the water pure and of the proper temperature.

Perhaps the largest problem to confront California conservationists arose during the construction of mammoth Shasta Dam. Here commercial fishing was involved. Formerly nearly half of all the salmon caught in California waters were spawned in the cold mountain streams above the dam site.

In the warm Sacramento River water below the dam, authorities agreed, the salmon would not spawn. To solve the problem, a fish hatchery was built on Battle Creek, a tributary stream, for artificial spawning. A section of Keswick Dam, a few miles below Shasta, was transformed into a fish trap, constructed so as to lift the salmon on their way upstream into a cage. When full, the cage could be swung into a tank-truck and transported to the hatchery.

A year after birth in the hatchery, the young fish, about six inches long, were liberated into the waters of Battle Creek, and from there made their way into the Sacramento and to the ocean.

For five years, the normal life span of the salmon, the fish were trapped at Keswick Dam on their way to their old spawning grounds. Today, the trap is scarcely used, for the salmon returning now first felt free water in Battle Creek, and the homing instinct leads them directly there.

Fishing is both one of California's important industries and major vacation sports. And it is a great deal more, apparently, than just a matter of rod and reel.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

PLANTING AVOCADO AND CITRUS TREES

Avocado and citrus trees need special care when planted at this time of year. For best results the water needs and protection from sunburn must be considered, says Assistant Farm Advisor J. J. Coony of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Watering should follow up the actual planting operation. Within one or two days the second application should be made. The basin should be small enough and so shaped that water will penetrate into the balled soil. The next several irrigations may be six to ten days apart, depending upon soil type and weather.

Nursery trees, unless well foliated, need protection from sun rays when planted this late in the season. The trunk area just above the bud union, which is green and tender and especially vulnerable, is often the only exposed portion needing protection. Loose paper wraps, shingles or whitewashing are possible methods, to use suggests Coony.

KEEP SWEETCORN COOL

Sweet corn is a highly perishable product, reminds Bernard J. Hall, assistant Farm Advisor, University of California Agricultural Extension Service. After harvest, the sugar starts changing very rapidly to starch at warm temperatures. In fact Hall says that when the temperature is 70 degrees F., the quality rating can drop from excellent to poor during the first day.

For short marketing periods of one or two days, corn temperatures should be 50 degrees F. or lower. For longer periods of three days or more, the temperature should be lowered to 40, or below, as soon as possible after harvest and kept there.

Hall recommends three methods of cooling corn:

Precooling is done before or after packaging by immersing the corn in a cold water bath or passing it through a shower of cold water. The water bath should be kept at a temperature of 40 or lower. This will lower the temperature of the corn 12 to 15 degrees in 15 or 20 minutes. A period shorter than 15 minutes does little good and after 20 minutes the rate of cooling slows up rapidly. It will take from 200 to 400 pounds of ice to precool the water for one ton of corn. Crushed ice will work faster than chunk ice.

Hall says to precool as soon as possible after harvest and do not expose the corn to warm temperatures afterwards.

Hall says to precool as soon as possible after harvest and do not expose the corn to warm temperatures afterwards.

In the package-icing method, from 5 to 25 pounds of ice is distributed through the container.

This gives a good cooling because of the continued direct contact between the ice and corn. However, the ice causes a heavier, wet package; the containers used now are not well suited to this method; and there is a possibility of a slack pack on arrival at the market. If precooling is used first, followed by package-icing, smaller amounts of ice will be needed.

Icing in transit can be used for long hauls of 75 miles or more, especially if a grower has gone to the expense of precooling or package-icing. For this method, crushed ice is used over or through the load in the truck or railway car. The ice helps the temperature during transit, but will not allow any additional cooling.

STRONG FARM PRICE

The farm price and demand situation now looks fairly strong to the Department of Agriculture economists, says Farm Advisor E. C. Moore.

George Alcorn, marketing specialist of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, has just returned from Washington, and he says the government economists are not as pessimistic now about the farm price situation as they were this spring.

However, it is obvious that adjustments are in process and further adjustments are anticipated, they say. Some downward trend in prices is expected for farm products generally, but no sharp break is anticipated. Indications are that certain crops may have to be sold at much lower prices this year.

The people of the United States had less money to spend the first quarter of 1949 than they have had previously; and may have even some 10 percent less in the coming year. While prices, income, production and employment are drifting downward, the government economists feel that an upward turn in demand appears fairly certain this fall or next spring. They base this assumption upon the present strong overall financial situation, government financing, high construction activity and high level of exports.

Some feel that prices must come down considerably in order to stimulate this demand. It is now apparent that the customer has satisfied his deferred demands and that competition is returning among sellers. Inventories have accumulated in many lines. Handlers, wanting these inventories reduced, have already made price adjustments necessary.

CHANGE IN CATtle MARKETING

Many beef cattle are being sold from San Diego county ranches as feeders instead of as slaughter animals this year, according to F. W. Dorman, Assistant Farm advisor.

This very definite trend is due to public demand for higher finish on beef cattle, and the rather poor grass season experienced by cattlemen.

Dorman states that this trend is of great importance to local cattlemen. Their cattle will go to feeders instead of packers. The price will average somewhat lower.

The cattle must be sold young enough and in good enough condition to finish in the feed lots at less than 1,000 pounds.

Good quality cattle, in the proper finish, and not too heavy, will continue to bring the best returns.

BLACK SCALE ON CITRUS

Evidence of more black scale than usual on citrus trees is reported by John Coony of the Farm Advisor's office. Although by no means a general problem, the situation is serious on a few individual orchards. The scale deposits a honeydew on the foliage and fruit. A black mold grows in the honeydew, and the result is a sooty mass.

The functioning of the refreshments served. Included were Kay and Lee Nevis, Frank Oyos, Frank Loveday, John and Robert Luna, Ann Marie, Mercy and Gloria Smith, John Martha and Michael Valdez.

the leaves is retarded and fruit is difficult to clean.

Ordinary oil sprays will readily control black scale, if the timing is right. Growers noting any black scale build-up might consider spraying as early this year as size of fruit and other conditions will permit.

There are several insects that are parasitic upon black scale, adds Coony. Of these, Metaphycus helvolus is considered most effective. The small population of black scale the past few years and the freezing weather in January may account for the current small numbers of these beneficial insects. It is expected that the helvolus will increase in number and effectiveness.

Carlos Valdez, 7663 Lemon avenue, had a most happy birthday anniversary Saturday when his mother and sisters, Nancy and Rose, entertained a group of friends in his honor. Games were played and Carlos received many gifts. A candle-lighted birthday cake was a feature of the refreshments served. Included were Kay and Lee Nevis, Frank Oyos, Frank Loveday, John and Robert Luna, Ann Marie, Mercy and Gloria Smith, John Martha and Michael Valdez.

New Telephone Book is Out

Copies of the new July, 1949, telephone directories are being delivered this week to subscribers in the largest telephone directory distribution ever made here, it was announced by C. L. Adams, manager of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Nearly 106,000 copies of the new book are being delivered in the San Diego exchange, 40,000 in the San Diego extended area and 15,000 in county exchanges, the manager said. This is an increase of more than 18,000 over the number delivered last September.

The new telephone directory contains more than 100,000 listings. The new book will be in service for nine months.

Subscribers should carefully examine old directories before giving them to the delivery man or before disposing of them. Personal belongings frequently have been found in the old books.

ACTIVITIES in and Around Lemon Grove

By MARGE ELLISON

Lemon Grove horsemen were prominently represented at the Del Mar Horse Show where their horses competed successfully among the more than 700 horses registered for the six day show, the largest number of entries in the history of the fair. So, it goes without saying that competition was close and the following winners are well deserving of their awards:

Mrs. V. J. Dorman, of Lemon Grove, took seventh in the three-gaited class, with "Lem Hawkins" and took second in the Trail Horse Class with "Tonia," who also took fourth in the Pleasure Horse (Western equipment) while daughter, Bobbie, took fifth award in the English Park Seat, also on Tonia. Champ Hough, of La Mesa, took fourth in Hunters and Jumpers Seat on Tuesday night; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hart, of Broadview Farms, won fifth award with "Flying Tiger" came home with awards; Mr. and

Marie Immenschuh, of La Mesa, had three horses entered and all came home with awards: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Goforth, of La Mesa, entered their Arabian mare, Ferdeyna, in the Arabian Class and received fourth ribbon, with Harry Harness, of El Cajon, receiving fifth award for his Arabian mare, Murtah; Bob and Harry Harness were entered in the $500 Arabian stake class, with riders in costume, which is the first of its kind in these parts. Awards in the pinto class were won by A. R. Hoffmann and Walter Church, both of El Cajon, and in the Palomino class, Glen O. Perkins' "The Plainsman" won over "Golden Boss," owned by Dr. Carleton Williams, of La Mesa.

On Tuesday night the show was opened by eight Aztec riders, all riding black and white pinto horses and carrying five American flags, two California flags and the Aztec flag of maroon and gold. Aztec riders also ushered at the show on Tuesday night.

The Rock 'N Ride All-Girl Drill Team, of El Cajon, opened the Wednesday evening show with their color guard, followed by a very difficult, but well executed, drill exhibition, for which they hold champion honors in the State.

Closely following the Del Mar Show is the gala parade and horse show put on by Fiesta de la Luna, at Chula Vista this week.

The children's parade will be on Friday, and Saturday, the Fiesta de la Luna Association will hold its 15th annual parade, followed by presentation of parade awards and horse show at 1:00 p. m. in Eucalyptus Park, Fourth and C streets. The beautiful awards presented at these affairs in the past will lure practically every riding club in the county, along with hundreds of leading horsemen.

There will be five awards, each with trophy and ribbon in the float section alone (either horse drawn or motor driven) and 16 other parade class entries, with trophy and ribbon for each winner.

Of the eight classes in the afternoon show, the Children's Musical Chairs and Children's Egg Race have no entry fee and are open to children 17 or under.

There will be a trophy and four ribbons for both of these classes and the same for the six classes to follow. Honorable Frank Evans is judge of the show; Bert Marshall, show chairman and C. J. Morgan, as announcer.

The Charles Hough family has sold its beautiful horse range on Panorama Drive to "Bill" of the popular Bill's Feed Stores. Chas. Hough, Sr., is president of the S. D. Hunters and Jumpers Assn., while Charles, Jr., (Champ) is president of the Junior Hunters and Jumpers. The Houghs have purchased a home in Burbank.

Mrs. Pearl Hall, of La Mesa, is an experienced horsewoman and has sold her stable mate for "Lady."

Her new horse is a three-year-old sorrel stallion named "Red Whistler," out of the thorobred "Pan-ful" and a quarter-type mare.

A meeting of all horsemen in the county is being called for Monday evening, July 11, at 8:00 p. m., in the Little Theatre of the Grossmont High School. This gathering is being arranged by the San Diego County Horsemen's Association, Inc., whose main interest is in acquiring adequate and safe trails for riders.

This meeting will be to plan "feeder trails" to connect with the State Loop Trail; and also to vote on a club emblem for the organization. Area directors will be appointed. A representative of the County Board of Supervisors has been invited to speak.

The meeting is free and all horsemen are cordially invited. Over 100 new members were taken in during the past 30 days, which is a good indication that the horsemen realize the need for unity if we are going to make any progress on the trails. Headquarters for the San Diego County Horsemen's Association, Inc., are at 7832 Broadway, Lemon Grove, which is also the editorial office for the new horse magazine "Southland Equestrian Journal," the first issue of which will be in the hands of horsemen this week. San Diego County is one of the leading counties in the State in the large number of horses owned. The interesting events and programs offered, up to this time, has fallen short in not having an adequate outlet to publicize and stimulate these events. It is hoped the new magazine will fill this need. News items, pictures, announcements, notice of forthcoming events and "horse gossip" in general is invited from all the readers and can be dropped off in person, or mailed, no later than the 18th of each month to: Editorial Office Southland Equestrian Journal, 7332 Broadway, Lemon Grove. Just as quickly as telephone facilities are available at this address, we hope to keep the wires hot with affairs of the Horsemen's Association and "cub" reporting for the magazine.

It is hoped the new magazine will fill this need. News items, pictures, announcements, notice of forthcoming events and "horse gossip" in general is invited from all the readers and can be dropped off in person, or mailed, no later than the 18th of each month to: Editorial Office Southland Equestrian Journal, 7332 Broadway, Lemon Grove. Just as quickly as telephone facilities are available at this address, we hope to keep the wires hot with affairs of the Horsemen's Association and "cub" reporting for the magazine.
